Offering For The Blind - Sat.

In addition to carrying on work in more than a thousand languages, the Seventh-day Adventist Church also publishes in Braille, members of the Appomattox Church will be reminded here this week. A report from the Christian Braille Foundation of Lincoln, Nebraska, points out that the foundation looks to Adventists for much of its support.

Information coming to the local church states that the foundation serves the blind in 83 countries besides the United States and Canada. Its services include talking books (taped or on record) and large - print books, as well as Braille books and magazines.

Included in its contributions are summer camps for blind children. Clinics are sponsored to screen for glaucoma. Scholarships are made available to needy blind students.

The Record Braille Foundation maintains a staff of representatives across the U.S. and Canada who visits homes, discovering blind people and informing them of services available, often the foundation says, these representatives serve as counselors for those whom they meet.

Tractor Driving Winner

Thursday of this past week Phillip Lucado, Chaplin of the Appomattox F.F.A. Chapter, demonstrated his ability to operate a farm tractor safely and accurately to win the Hub Federation Tractor Contest. Phillip, in order to win, had to have the best total score in three events.

The first event consisted of backing a two wheel trailer down a 40 ft. alley, driving the tractor and trailer through a series of gates arranged in a figure eight, and finally backing the 8 ft. trailer into an eight and a half foot shed.

Backing a four wheel wagon into a shed was the second event.

Both of these events were scored on safety and an accuracy of 3 inches on all sides and the rear of the trailer and wagon.

Checking a tractor for those items of daily maintenance which might be wrong was the third event.

Phillip will compete Saturday in the Southside Area Tractor Driving Contest which is composed of the previously described events plus a written test on tractor care and operation.
